To the editor:

This Sunday, January 22, we commemorate one of the saddest days in American history, the day the U.S. Supreme Court handed down its decision in Roe v. Wade. Since the ruling, more than 43 million unborn babies have been aborted.

Pro-life people across Michigan will remember those unborn children this Sunday and throughout the year as we continue to fight to protect Michigan's future generations. One bill currently before the Michigan Legislature would give mothers the opportunity to view an ultrasound image of their unborn child before making the decision to end that child's life.

I will continue to push for legislation protecting the dignity of human life in Michigan. So far, our efforts have paid off. Since 1987, there has been a 46.5-percent decrease in Michigan abortions. This is great news, but much remains to be done. Michigan's most vulnerable deserve the chance to live. They are children, not choices.

Sincerely,

Michelle A. McManus
